N a cell in Ludlow Street Jail Charles G. Francklyn, formerly agent of the Cunard Steamship line, and the president of the Horn Silver Mining Company, who was arrested yesterday in a suit brought against him by his cousin, Sir Bache Cunard, of England, to recover $3,000,000 damages, is still languishing, being spirits. This morning he refused to see the representative of any newspaper, declining even to talk with Warden Keating, for fear that he might communicate with outsiders. No one had been to visit the prisoner up to 10 o'clock this morning.

The papers in the case, which are now in the hands of the sheriff, put an entirely different light on the case from that presented in the first accounts. The arrest is made in an action brought against the defendant for the wrongful conversion of property held by him in a fiduciary capacity. The complaint, which is drawn up by Whitlock and Simonds, counsel for Sir Bache Cunard, the plaintiff, recites the fact that on Sept. 24, 1872, the plaintiff was in the possession of bonds and securities valued at $1,000,000. At that time he appointed Charles G. Francklyn, his confidential agent, to manage and invest this estate, and the latter took possession and agreed to act in this capacity. which he did, but no portion of the income of these investments were paid over until Sept. 25, 1885. On Oct. 6, 1883, the plaintiff placed in Francklyn's hands as agent an additional sum of $100,000 in cash to hold, manage and invest for his account, and he received it and continued to operate with it until Sept. 25, 1885.

In July, 1885, the plaintiff demanded that Francklyn deliver over to him all the securities in his hands. Not hearing anything from Francklyn, Cunard himself came to this city and made a personal demand upon Francklyn for the money, and an accounting of the funds which he had held from the beginning. It is further said in the affidavits that the defendant admitted to the plaintiff at that time, in July, 1885, that he had taken and converted to his own use and had sold or hypothecated for his own purposes bonds and other securities to the amount of $500,000, and could not turn the money over. He furthermore begged the plaintiff not to take any legal proceedings against him, alleging that if not hampered by the publication of the facts in the case he would be able in time to re racts in the case he would be able in time to repay all. Relying upon this and being un-willing to disgrace his relative, for Francklyn was his first cousin, and trusting further that the defendant would do all in his power to repay the amount that he had converted, he forbore to bring suit at the time.

repay the amount that he had converted, he forbore to bring suit at that time.

BON Sept. 25, 1885, Gordon Cunard, brother of the plaintiff, came over in his behalf and Francklyn paid over tohim $323,650 in cash, and government. $508,367.58, and promised to make further soon, 387.08, and promised to make turner payments as soon as he could realize on securities that he had pledged.

Since that time, however, the plaintiff had not received a dollar from Francklyn, in spite of repeated requests and demands, and he had practically refused to deliver over to him any not received a dollar from Francklyn, in spite of repeated requests and demands, and he had practically refused to deliver over to him any of the securities or cash to which he was entitled to the value at the present time of $5,000,000. The complaint demands judgment in this amount.

Lawyer Hubbard, of Butler, Stillman & Hubbard, counsel for Francklyn, said that his client had been very hardly used in this matter. He claimed that Francklyn and Gunard, when they first began to operate for their joint account, made a very profitable thing out of it, and that in the early years of the arrangement a good deal of money was divided. Business misfortunes had made it impossible for him to fulfil his engagements.

The feeling in the street was one of sur-The feeling in the street was one of surprise at the arrest of Francklyn on account of his high social standing and his reputation as a man of wealth. Not a word of this matter had even been breathed before. A good deal of suspicion had been excited by his relations with the Horne Silver Mining Company, and it is probable that the matter of the mysterious "call loan" for $648,000, which stands in Mr. Francklyn's name will now be fully investigated. The speculations or investments of Mr. Francklyn with his cousin's money included railroad, mining and gas stocks and various other mining and gas stocks and various other ties in which he was supposed to have The following extracts from letters written by Francklyn to Sir Bache Cunard during the progress of these transactions throw additional interesting light upon the case. The first is from a letter written Sept. 2, 1885, and is as follows.

MY DEAR BACH: I have begun to write to you several times, but each time I had to give it up as a bad job. Everything has gone so wrong and I have had such a struggle to keep above water that it has about used me up. I now write to ask you to cheer up and not to think of bankruptcy which Gordon says you contemplate. I will strain every nerve to send you some money and in time I feel sure I shall be able to make good everything to you and all.

"The employment of lawyers here has not helped the situation much that I can see, in fact it has done more harm than ever can be made up to me. However, I have nothing to say about it, except that I will devote myself to making good all the damage I have done."

A third, written March 26. 1887, reads: DEAR BACHE—You say I am not doing anything to assist you, after having ruined you. That remains to be seen. If you are going to rake up everything and try to help yourself, I do not see that I am to blame.

Election of Officers for the Next Class Day [SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.]

Boston, Mass., Oct. 21.—The election of Harvard class-day officers took place last evening in Massachusetts Hall. For a great many years Boylston Hall has been the scene of this annual contest for class-day honors, but this year the scene was transferred to old Massachusetts, and there for many hours the contest was waged last night. St. Paige presided, and F. B. Lund officiated as secretary. Many of the elections were closely contested. In the contest for third Marshal, J. Walter Wood, of New York, was elected by a clear majority. Mr. Wood is one of the handsome men of '88 and his election was no surprise to his friends in the college. He has been a prominent football player for two years and has rowed in the 'Varsity crew. He has been prominent in college societies and is anjanfluential member of the Hasty Pudding Club.

Mr. Lloyd McKim Garrison, of New York, was elected poet, over Mr. Leahy. Mr. Garrison is a prominent literary man in college. He is President of the Advocate and a member of the O. K. Society. He is also a member of the Hasty Pudding Club.

Mr. H. S. Sanford, of New York, was elected odist, by a majority of sixty-three votes, over Mr. Leahy, on the second ballot. Whipples by thirteen votes. He is the leader of the glee club, and is the most prominent musical critic in the class. The largest fight was over the Class. Day Committee. The chairman of this committee is considered second only to the Marshal's and the position is greatly coveted. Messrs. Palmer, Leighton and Loeb were the candidates, the two former being very closely together. Mr. Palmer finally won. Bradley W. Palmer, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., is the manager of the football team and has considerable executive ability, the main requisite for the position. George B. Leighton, of St. Louis, Mo., the competitor in the former election, was easily elected to the second place on the Class-Day Committee. Class-Day Committee.

desemblances Connecting George Martin' Servant with the Rahway Mastery.

ISPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD. NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 21,-The latest phase of the Rahway mystery is the suspicion that George Martin, of Metuchen, who employed Annie Ingraham as a servant knows about her whereabouts after she left the house of Mary Wilson at Bound Brook. When ex-Chief Fitzgerald saw Martin yesterday morning Martin denied that he had seen Annie since her arrest on May 4, 1886, for an assault upon him. He agreed with Fitzgerald that the picture of the numdered girl resembled the photograph of Annie which he produced. This picture represented Martin and Annie standing together, the woman's right hand resting affectionately on Martin's shoulder. On the wrist of this hand was a broad bracelet, which has not yet been spoken of as found among the effects of the murdered girl.

I understand that the murdered girl had such a pair of shoes on. Martin visited her several times and quarrelled with her. I told her to have nothing further to do with him and she promised she would not. Once she ran into the house from him and said she locked her door at night while at Martin's house because she was afraid of him."

It is now said that a woman answering Annie's description left Philadelphia with a man on March 18, six days before the murder at Rahway. Frank Oredeford, who married Annie, has not been found.

Cips From "The Evening World's" Ticker. Money on call is said to be abundant to-day at he Exchange at 8 a 4 per cent.

The Manhattan bull pool first announced in Wed-neaday's issue of THE EVENING WORLD declared itself positively yesterday and led the advance. The bears are confident that the advance of yes-terday and the steadiness of to-day's opening market are merely the expiring spasms of a short-lived raily.

Some well-posted people, even on the bear side of the market now begin to believe that Jay Gould meant exactly what he said when he declared that certain shorts "would get hurt." The street wants to know more about the Thomas, Brice and Brown Syndicate. Yesterday's 6, 800,000 transaction with C. R. Cummings, of Chicago, has excited considerable interest.

There was a report on the street this morning that Henry Villard has been elected President of the Oregon Transcontinental Company, in place of Elijah Smith. Mr. Smith's brother denies the report of Villard's election. The street is surprised by this morning's cable to the effect that the firm of Bernard Sandbank & Co., of Leipsic, has failed for 2,000,000 marks, and that the condition of the Leipsic market promises other and still more extensive failures. THE ALLEGHANY ASHORE.

Beached at Chatham to Keep from Going t

SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.] CHATHAM, Mass., Oct. 21.—Steamer Alle-ghany, from Baltimore for Boston, is ashore at Chatham.

The Alleghany is 250 feet long, 38.5 feet breadth of beam, 16.6 feet depth, and registered 201,442 gross tonnage and 143,308 net tonnage. She was built at Philadelphia in 1881 has three decks and two masts, and is owned by the Merchants' and Miners' Transportation Company of Baltimore.

The Alleghany left Boston for Baltimore Thursday, Oct. 13. Last Monday she left Baltimore in the afternoon for Boston. She had on board a promiseuous cargo of freight and eight passengers. A short stop was made and eight passengers. A short stop was made at Norfolk, that port being left Wednesday forenoon. Last evening, when off Chatham, the gale whose approach had been prophesied by the evening papers struck her.

No news reached this city until this morning, when the following telegram was received by the agent of the company to which she belongs:

CHATHAM, MASS., Oct. 21.

Geo. E. Smalley, Central Whatf, Boston:
Alleghany ashore three miles S. W. by W. from Chatham Lights. Struck something off West Chop. Run ashore to keep from sinking. Want divers, lighters, steam pumps and tug at onee. Think lower hold and lower dacks between will fill. Think ship can be saved and cargo in dangerous condition. Eight passengers, all well. Will send them ashore first chance. Ship damaged forward. I think not bad; can be freed with wrecking pumps. I have telegraphed to Mr. Appold. Ship in three fathoms of water.

Ship in three fathoms of water.

J. C. TAYLOR, on board.

The manager of the Boston Towboat Company was also telegraphed by Capt. Taylor, and has been doing everything possible to send assistance. The severity of the weather about the shore prevented any boats being sent, however. The agent says that all that can be done is to wait until the weather becomes more settled, as no tugboat can breast the storm that has been sweeping along the coast the last twenty-four hours.

The Boston Towboat Company have two tugs, the C. M. Winch and the Confidence, in New York Harbor waiting smooth weather.

These tugs, however, have been telegraphed to put out to the assistance of the stranded Alleghany as soon as possible. Two other tugs, the Underwriter and the Ocean King, belonging to the same towboat company, left Boston last night. The Underwriter had got almost around the Cape, or about opposite Highland Light, when the severity of the gale warned her to put inshore. When last heard from the Underwriter was making to get into Provincetown Harbor. The gale came from the southeast and was reported to be one of the most severe that has been experienced along the shore for months. The Ocean King was on her way to New York with two barges in tow, but must have been compelled to put into some harbor, probably at the Vineyard.

The Hasbrouck sent a small boat to the Miller to say that there was no danger. The steamer James T. Brett will take off the freight and passengers. The Hasbrouck lies in a very bad position.

Her bow is about fifty feet on land. It is badly stove up. The steamer is owned by the Poughkeepsie Transportation Company. She is commanded by Capt. Cooper, and piloted by James Delemater and H. Clough.

Mrs. Sophie Evans, of No. 155 Norfolk street, discovered a burglar yesterday in Mrs. Fogelmann's room, which is next hers, and promptly flung her arms about him and held him, notwithstanding the fact that he

A struggle ensued, Mrs. Evans clinging to him desperately, and crying for help. The burglar dragged her himself out of the room, and Mrs. Evans had to let go, as the burglar had pulled her to the banister and was gradually forcing her over it. The burglar did not run a block before Policeman Bissert caught him

The Family Broken Up. A sad case of destitution was called to the attention of Justice Gorman this morning in the Jefferson Market Police Court. Three fair-haired little brothers named George Boos, aged eleven years; Frank, aged eight, and Louis, aged six, all clasped their arms around each others necks and wept, drying their tears with their soft hats. There were three of seven children left by their mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Boos, who had been taken to Bellevue Hospital, dying with consumption. The other children were Jacob, aged fiteen, and Fred, aged fourteen; Lizzie, three years, and Emma, a baby of eleven months, who was carried to court by a neighbor George W. Preston, an uncle of the children, said that their father died one year ago from consumption. The uncle said that he would take care of the two oldest boys and an aunt would care for the girl Lizzie. When told that the County Democracy boss was in parlor 52, the Congressman lost no time in reaching the boss' presence.

As might be expected, there were all sorts of rumors around the hotel regarding the intentions of the County Democracy leaders. It was said that they were in caucus at the New Amsterdam Club until 3 o'clock this morning, and that a monkey and parrot kind of a time occurred. Several of the leaders were in favor of abandoning James Fitzgerald, but Justice Power insisted upon his nomination for District-Attorney. He would not listen to any argument favoring the nomination of Mr. De Lancey Nicoli.

It is also understood that a few of the leaders held a conference of their own and expressed opinions about Justice Power which they would not dare to utter publicly or to his face.

"I will not accept the nomination under any circumstances. I am tired of the office. There is any amount of hand work attached to it, and while one made but few friends he gains the enmity of every poor debil he convicts. The office is not appreciated by the public."

Sheriff Grant, in alluding to the conference muddle, said: "The representatives of Tammany Hall are waiting for the County Democracy people to settle the quarrel among themselves. They do not seem to know what to do to-day any more than they did yesterday. I have talked with several of the County Democracy leaders and they all appear very much mixed up. They tell me that they really know nothing about what is going on. Judge Power was here for a few minutes and then went downtown. Perhaps the County leaders are awaiting his return. I do not know where he went, but suppose he journeyed down to the District-Attorney's office. Everything is at a standstill. Of course Tammany Hall will not recede from its position. We will not, under any circumstances, accept Mr. Fitzgerald as the union candidate for District-Attorney."

"Is there a prospect of a break in the conference proceedings?"

"There is a chance of a slip up, and if the conference committee began a caucus in room 58, while the County Democracy will be to blame."

At 1 P. M. the Tammany Hall Conference Committee began a caucus in room 58, while the County Democracy men met in room 52. There are fourteen members of the Joint Conference Committee, and thirteen of them are patiently awaiting Justice Power's decision. There is not much excitement to-day around the Westminster Hotel, and the fact that very few local politicians are about is much commented upon. The only statesmen who were present while the conference committees were at work were Senator James Daly. Petel Mitchell, counsel for O'Neill and Sharp; Assemblymen Kenny, Shea and Zimmerman, Commissioner of Charities Simmons, Coroner Messemer and Clerk John F. Carroll, of the Seventh District Court. More political pilgrims are expected later in the day.

the New Amsterdam Club and a County Democracy member of the State Committee, said: "I hear from good authority that Mr. Martine still refuses to allow his name to be used for District-Attorney. He wishes the Criminal Court Judgeship. Many of his friends are with him today trying to persuade him to accept a renomination. If he sticks to his decision it will complicate things worse than ever."

At 1.30 the Tammany Hall Conference Committee took a recess. Police Justice Charles Welde said he was getting tired of the procrastinating County Democrats.

"We cannot postpone action much longer," he exclaimed.

"What will Tammany Hall do if the County Democracy leaders do not make up their minds very soon?"

"I think we will nominate a ticket tonight. I am in favor of it. If we nominate a ticket it is very likely that we will name Mr. Nicoll for District Attorney and Mr. Martine for Judge of Sessions. If I have a say in our Conference Committee the Tammany Hall Convention will not adjourn to-night without putting a ticket in the field."

Dr. Daniel Burquet, a Frenchman, sixty years old, and residing at No. 224 West Fifteenth street, made a mistake last night as to the house he lived in. He had been dining well. When he found himself near home he gravely climbed the stoop of No. 222, the house adjoining his, and rang the bell. When the door was opened by the servant he tried to push his way into the house. Although the servant assured him that he lived next door he insisted that he was right. The glass door was then closed on him, leaving him in the vestibule.
